Jeshua on Love

"You cannot define love with even the largest definition, for your understanding is not external to it. Because love is who you are, you will never fully comprehend its mysteries. Because love is who God is, love is the Divine Mystery. Love cannot be controlled. It cannot be predicted. It cannot be enforced. It cannot be enslaved. It cannot be killed. It cannot be defined. If you would speak of the depth, the power, and the infinite genius of love, think upon its ability to end all duality. Love has no opposites. It cannot be captured, and yet it willingly serves. It is infinitely free, and yet it abides in captivity. It cannot be enforced, and yet it is the basis of all law. It is the bringer of truth, and yet it never judges. It is the seer of all things, and yet it never condemns. It conquers by surrendering. It rules by lifting up.

Through its mastery of paradox, love ends all duality."

The second is fear from outside sources. Simply put, being 'stuck' by allowing others in group or individual to control you and limit your freedom.

In order to overcome the detrimental consequences of fear and its side effects of despair, depression and immobility all that is required is to face them in strength. Then ask your Divinity to create possibilities and situations that are fear and harm free and then choose the power of will to live them.

Be active!

The Role of Fear in the Crystalline Age

In the Crystalline Age of the Ascended Earth partnering with others of diverse content will be seen as very do-able when release of fear is permitted and love is not impeached. Cooperation and harmony do not create limitation, rather expansion and creativity.

This possibility, however, requires accountability and responsibility. It does not mean cowering or passivity in the throes of duality. Love requires the commitment of strength. This does not mean bullying another or allowing self to be controlled by fear. Indeed it is standing in your truth, and that requires gentle but solid courage.

Fear, from our higher perspective, is not the opposite of love, in fact it has its purposed role in duality just as all 'obstacles' do. Nor is LOVE meant to cancel out fear per sei. Rather the two, from overview, work in tandem to allow humanity to find the harmonic solution.

But do not misunderstand us, unbridled fear can and does separate. It detriments wisdom. As such it is a catalyst in duality. Fear is employed by those with an agenda and a desire to control. Release of fear through unity consciousness is your final test.

As your great teacher, Mahatma Ghandi told you, when you disarm your own heart in unity with those that are fearful and controlling, you disarm their hearts as well. Not by giving in, but by being steadfast in your power and truth, yet open to unity within love of others.

Violence begets violence, and it is never the answer to resolving conflict. For a while it may seem the dark side is winning, but in the end, it is always love that prevails.

So there are in essence two levels of fear. The first is inner fear, fear that causes you to become weak, filling you with doubt and confusion, impairing Love of Self.

2010 Predictions: The Year of Conscious Awareness

Astrology Report by Mark Dodich

“Get ready for an exciting year. Astrologers have been privately talking about 2010 at astrology conferences for several years, and now it’s time to bring our secrets into the world. If you have been impatiently waiting for 2012, then you will be happy to know that it is arriving two years early.

The heavy-duty outer planets that transform lives are all tied together in 2010 in a challenging pattern called a T-square. Imagine the tension you would feel if you were sitting on a three-legged chair that should have four legs. You can sit on it, but you need to pay conscious attention to your actions to maintain your stability. The least little movement, like reaching for your cup of tea, requires you to rebalance on the fly. Add to that, explosive Uranus moves into impatient Aries this summer to blow up your comfort zone.

Before you rush to call your favourite astrologer, know that this motivating planetary alignment is a good thing. When planets line up in the early degrees of action signs (specifically Libra, Aries and Capricorn), there is an impatient rush to pioneer a new path.

In 2010, the universe reminds you that everything is connected. You must look several steps down the road when you make a decision, because your actions this year will reverberate throughout all areas of your life during the next two years. The planetary energies of 2012 look calm compared to this summer. The year 2010 does the intense transforming work, so that you are prepared to peacefully meditate on creating a new galactic reality by 2012. Because these expansive and explosive frequencies do not peak until summer, it is important to begin with relatively uncommon energies currently building toward a summer crescendo.

Warrior Mars, now passing through passionate Leo, begins the year in its rare retrograde cycle. Since Dec. 20, 2009 and through March 10, you have and will be reviewing your ambitions. Leo requires you to step into leadership, urging you to create your life based on your heart’s desire. If you are trying to keep a relationship or job in motion, but your heart just isn’t in it, Mars retrograde stimulates you to quietly prepare your battle plan for action come spring. With Mars spending six months in Leo when its normal passage is six weeks, you are getting an aggressive push to align your worldly actions with a passionate, heart-centered path. Before making excuses as to why you cannot have what your heart wants, remember that summer brings paradigm shifts in your life. Trust that your old beliefs and behaviours will fall away. Now is the time to do the behind-the-scenes preparation before announcing your plans to the world.

The energy of these changes picks up speed by August. Before you run off to a cave in Montana, know that the T-square has already been building since 2008. Destructive Pluto moved into restructuring Capricorn to change aspects of the world that were sitting on faulty foundations (such as bad real estate loans and money games on Wall Street).

Everything is connected

You must look several steps ahead before acting because 2010 sets the stage throughout all areas of your life for the next two years

December 20, 2009 – March 10, 2010: Mars (retrograde) in Leo:

Review your ambitions and create your heart’s desire - aligning worldly action with the heart’s path. This is preparation for the paradigm shifts coming in summer.

Since 2008, Pluto (destructive) has been in Capricorn (restructuring)

The second leg of the T-square started last October when integrity-focused Saturn entered the relationship sign of Libra. You are called to rebalance your relationships, beginning with your relationship to self. If you have been giving too much of yourself away, then you must reclaim healthy boundaries or risk burning out Libra-ruled adrenals.

On a global level, Saturn was in Libra in the early 1980s and early 1950s. The United Nations was in the news and the U.S. was actively changing relationships with the Russians through the reduction of weapons systems. As this energy was getting started in 2008, the installation of weapons systems near Russia's border was cancelled by President Obama. The United Nations will go through a restructuring before Saturn leaves Libra in the fall of 2012. Whether you are looking at global or personal relationships, they are all in the process of change. Good relationships have the opportunity to go to even better levels. Bad relationships must be torn apart to be restructured or released. Whether this is the relationship of the U.S. with a country in change like Cuba, or in your love, family or work relationships, the key is the same. Libra urges diplomacy, grace and cooperation. Saturn requires long term, patient changes to create a solid foundation for the future.

Beginning October 2009, Saturn (integrity) entered Libra (relationships) calling for rebalance in relationships personally and globally.

There is a wild card to add to the mix. Expect-the-unexpected Uranus moves into independent Aries at the full moon on May 27. Uranus revolutionizes your life and Aries wants it done yesterday. All of your neatly laid plans get hit by a thunderbolt. Uranus wants to sell it all and go on a walkabout. Aries wants to pioneer a completely new path. You must balance this freedom-seeking energy with the stabilizing energy of the other two legs of the T-square.

It is like putting a complex puzzle together while all the pieces are floating in zero gravity. The beauty is that you creatively combine different aspects of your life in a way that has never been done before. The challenge is that you must release old paradigm modes of thinking.

Although my intent is to not participate in doom-and-gloom mentality, it is important to look at the difficult side of this grinding planetary pattern. Personal relationships that have not been working are going to crash and burn. Let them go.

Many people will choose to vacate the planet rather than work with this new energy. A recent example of this is last July when changing emotional energy released Michael Jackson, Farah Fawcett, Walter Cronkite and others who represented their generations.

Summer will be a busy fire season and earthquakes will be significant this year. Political and social revolutions will be in the news. The uncovering of corruption and hidden secrets continues to bring new surprises into the media. This same energy brings new inventions in diseases of the heart, natural energy and faster everything. The phrase "you can't teach an old dog new tricks" does not apply in 2010. Be willing to release old beliefs and behaviours and trust that you are being divinely guided to your highest good."

May 27, 2010 during full moon, Uranus (explosive – revolutionary change) moves into Aries (independence/pioneering a new path).

You must creatively combine different aspects of your life in a new way, releasing old paradigm modes of thinking.
